

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: Debora DiGiansante, Director Client Services

CMI Moves to State-of-the-Art Facilities

New facilities accommodate company growth in digital delivery and localization

STAMFORD, CT. October 21, 2016 — CMI, today announced the relocation of its East Coast headquarters from Armonk, New York to the downtown district of Stamford, Connecticut, a media hub right outside of New York City. The move to the 12,000 square foot space at 9 West Broad Street, Stamford, CT 06902 provides a new base of operations for staff and supports the company's continuing, robust growth. The company also maintains facilities in Studio City, CA.

The relocation is also another step in the company's evolution. CMI, which was founded in 1961 as Cinemagnetics, recently changed its name to CMI Media Management and rebranded with a new logo, and website at cminyla.com.

"We are incredibly excited about moving into our new offices" said Haitham Wahab, CEO and co-owner of CMI. "Our new state-of-the-art facility is the perfect post for considerably more efficiency and collaboration. We look forward to this next chapter as we shift toward expert digital technology while continuing to offer a full complement of video localization services to our clients. The new location also offers expanded meeting space for client centered events such as special screenings or targeted workshops and conferences."

CMI joins other corporations such as NBC Sports, the Yes Network, and ESPN who have made the move to the thriving business district of Stamford, CT.

The newly-renovated office space was designed by Dennis Noskin Architects out of Tarrytown, New York. The building houses state-of-the-art facilities with significantly enhanced connectivity to allow CMI to meet the localization, digital delivery and fulfillment needs of its partners in the Inflight Entertainment Industry (IFE) as well as of a variety of clients -- ranging from Fortune 500 corporations to educational content providers and independent artists to the film industry. HB Communications completed the systems architecture.

The space will house several corporate functions, including senior management, finance and administration as well as digital post production. CMI is also expanding its editorial suites and will soon be further expanding its audio recording and mixing capabilities in Stamford to complement its activities in the Studio City, CA location.

CMI's mission is to provide clients with the best in proven technology and the highest degree of customer service. CMI prides itself on creating value for their clients by attracting top talent and acquiring the best equipment and technology available.

About CMI:

CMI has 50+ years of innovation and quality offering the best localization services (subtitling, dubbing, captioning), digital delivery (preparation & encoding, distribution, QA & protection) and media fulfillment (media manufacturing, order & inventory management, shipping).

The end result? Getting the client's content to perform in any market, worldwide.

To learn more visit <http://www.cminyla.com/>.